1.2 Updates and Oversight: Serve Idaho Governance Committee is responsible for Commission Policy Manual changes, oversight, and maintenance.

ORGANIZATIONAL ESSENTIALS

2.1 Mission

The mission of The Governor’s Commission on Service and Volunteerism is “To inspire and recognize volunteers and empower communities through service and AmeriCorps to address Idaho’s unmet needs.”

2.2 History

Serve Idaho, the Governor’s Commission on Service and Volunteerism, was established through Executive Order by Governor Cecil D. Andrus in 1994 as a result of the National and Community Service Trust Act of 1993 and the creation of AmeriCorps. The Commission was established to advise and assist in the development and implementation of a comprehensive, statewide plan for promoting volunteer involvement and citizen participation in Idaho.

Serve Idaho, a division of the Idaho Department of Labor, is funded by grants from AmeriCorps the agency and through cash and in-kind donations from state and local partners. Serve Idaho does not receive general funds from the state.

2.3 Serve Idaho Overview

Serve Idaho is a division of the Idaho Department of Labor and is staffed by employees of the State of Idaho. However, it is a recipient of funding from AmeriCorps the agency and as is directed by the priorities of AmeriCorps which include; Economic Opportunity, Education, Environmental Stewardship, Healthy Futures, Veterans and Military Families and Disaster Services. AmeriCorps regulations require that Idaho develop three-year service plans outlining short- and long-term goals and objectives, including focus areas for the commission that are submitted to the governor for approval. The plan is reviewed annually to monitor accomplishment (Appendix A).

The Serve Idaho Commission utilizes a dashboard to stay up to date on progress of each goal in the three-year service plan. This is sent out to commissioners in advance of commission meetings.

2.4 Serve Idaho Programs

The Commission's work is carried out primarily through the following programs which engage Idahoans of all ages in service and volunteerism.

- AmeriCorps – Provides opportunities for Idahoans of all ages to help meet critical needs and make communities stronger. AmeriCorps members address issues such as — children's health, improvement of schools, environmental protection, veteran and military family support and volunteer recruitment and training. A list of current Idaho funded AmeriCorps programs can be found at <https://serveidaho.gov/AmeriCorps>.
- Training and Professional Development – The annual Serve Idaho Conference on Service and Volunteerism provides volunteer management and professional development training for national service members (AmeriCorps, AmeriCorps VISTA, Senior Corps, National Civilian Community Corps), volunteer administrators representing the public and private sectors, service-learning educators and community volunteers.
- Award Recognition – Serve Idaho partners with the Idaho Nonprofit Center to recognize outstanding volunteers and philanthropists annually during the Idaho Philanthropy Day events that take place throughout the state.

2.5 AmeriCorps Overview

Organizations receiving grants, having developed programs that are in line with AmeriCorps priorities then select individuals based on their qualifications for the tasks that they will perform in furtherance of those priorities. Programs provide ample training to prepare members prior to their terms of service, which do not last longer than one year, during which time they receive a living stipend. Full time members may serve up to 1700 hours within a 12-month period. During their service they receive health insurance and upon completion receive an education award. Part time members may serve up to 900 hours in a 12-month period. However, they do not receive health insurance but do receive an education award. Minimum time members may work up to 300 hours in a 12-month period. They also do not receive health insurance but do receive an education award. There are also additional types of member positions that vary in length. A full description of the various positions and their time commitment can be found at Our frequently asked questions | AmeriCorps.

Members have the opportunity to gain work experience in the way of job specific skills and “soft skills”. They can obtain professional development in the area of leadership and personal skills having the opportunity to make a difference in their community.

2.6 AmeriCorps Grant Application Process

One of the primary functions of the Commission is to review and recommend qualified applicants for AmeriCorps funding. The Serve Idaho staff is responsible for administrative functions, grants management, program oversight, special events and initiatives. Nonprofit organizations, state and local governments, institutions of higher education and Native American tribes are eligible to apply for AmeriCorps funding through Serve Idaho once it publishes the “Notice of Funding Opportunity” (NOFO).

Then, a Grant Application Review Committee (GARP), assembled of commissioners and community members, decides on which applications to recommend to the full commission for approval. Those grant applications approved by the commission are then forwarded to the AmeriCorps the agency who awards funding based on those recommendations.

Once a program is in place Serve Idaho staff monitor their compliance with grant goals and objectives, AmeriCorps guidelines and state and federal laws. This is accomplished by holding program directors meetings, site visits fiscal and programmatic reporting and electronic communications.

The Commission is committed to providing a working environment in which all individuals are treated with respect and dignity. Commissioners and employees have the right to work in a professional atmosphere and are expected to respect the individual qualities, characteristics and differences of others and promote a professional working environment in which to work.

All employees and commissioners in the Serve Idaho Commission are expected to conduct themselves in a respectful manner in the workplace by:

- Behaving in a way that shows respect towards others;
- Valuing each other's work and roles;
- Communicating in a polite and courteous manner;
- Developing relationships built on trust;
- Promoting a climate that is fair, supportive and responsive;
- Creating a welcoming environment through words, actions and physical surroundings;
- Resolving conflicts in a positive and respectful manner; and
- Celebrating differences.

Disrespectful behavior must be addressed promptly. Examples of behavior or actions that will not be tolerated include:

- Speaking in a threatening manner
- Bullying
- Swearing or using profane language
- Making rude, obscene or disparaging comments
- Excluding or refusing to associate with individuals
- Making personal or unprofessional insults, jokes or teasing

3.8 Commissioner Conflict of Interest

Serve Idaho should strive to achieve the greatest objectivity and impartiality possible in the review and selection of grantees in the state. Serve Idaho is a state entity and, therefore, should apply the state's rules on conflict of interest. Commission members need to know exactly what provisions govern their participation in the grant review and selection process in their state in order to avoid any conflict of interest. There may be state laws and regulations that are even more stringent than the federal provisions. The National and Community Service Act of 1990, as amended, and the AmeriCorps regulations governing State Commissions provide the following basic framework for avoiding conflict of interest:

How is conflict of interest defined?

As defined by the Act, a Commission member is considered to have a conflict of interest if the member is currently, or was within one year of the submission of an AmeriCorps grant application to the Commission:

- an officer,
- a director,
- a trustee,

- a full-time volunteer, or
- an employee of an organization submitting a grant application to the State Commission
- an employee of an organization that serves as a host/placement site for members.

The regulations further clarify that even the appearance of a conflict of interest must be avoided. If, for instance, a Commission member founded, contributed to the founding, assisted in the development of, or donated large sums of money to an organization applying for funds, he or she would have a conflict in voting on the selection of programs.

The main rule to follow is: any time a voting Commission member is not, or does not appear to be, for any reason, impartial to a program that is applying to the Commission for funding, the member has a conflict of interest.

General Rules Applicable to All Commission Members

Commission members may not, under any circumstances, assist an organization in the preparation of a grant application, except to take part in a Commission-approved program of technical assistance that is equally available to all potential applicants. This requirement is in accordance with the rule that Commission members may not provide anyone outside the Commission with “insider information,” that is, information that has not been released by the Commission or that is not already on the public record.

The statutory provision applies to all AmeriCorps grant programs administered by the Commission.

What happens if a Commission member has a conflict of interest?

If a Commission member has a conflict of interest, the member must recuse himself/herself from Serve Idaho’s administration of the grant program, including such activities as:

- any discussion or decision by Serve Idaho regarding the provision of funds or education awards to any program or entity funded under the same funding category;
- any discussion or decisions by Serve Idaho regarding the provision of funds or education awards to that specific program;
- the continuation of funds or education awards to any such program or entity funded under the same funding category; and
- participating in the oversight, evaluation, continuation, suspension, or termination of any grant under the same funding category.

If Commission members have a conflict of interest, in what activities can they participate?

The above prohibitions are not intended to restrict Commission members with a conflict, or the appearance of a conflict from participating in State Commission meetings, hearing and forums in which the general duties, policies and operation of the Commission are discussed.

What happens if enough Commission members recuse themselves from voting that the Commission loses its quorum?

If adhering to this general restriction creates a situation in which a Serve Idaho does not have enough eligible voting members to achieve quorum, which is defined as one half of the total number of members plus one, Serve Idaho may, in a random and non-discretionary manner, select the number of recused Commission members necessary to achieve quorum. If previously recused Commission members are allowed to vote for the purpose of achieving a quorum, Serve Idaho must document the event and report to AmeriCorps within 30 days of the vote. In no instance, however, may a Serve Idaho Commission member vote on an application submitted by his or her own organization.
